Calling all blond bicyclists: you could be the new Boris Johnson

The hunt begins: Boris Johnson (Picture: Glenn Copus)

Emergency! A Boris Johnson lookalike is required immediately for a new show in Edinburgh. La Trashiata, the new opera devised by Alison Jackson, the photographer notorious for satirising celebrities with her images, opens at Edinburgh's Fringe next week. It is also due to be live-streamed to cinemas around the country.

However they're in a steaming pile of doo-doo as the fellow who does Boris has suddenly quit. An advert for a replacement Boris has been put on Jackson's Facebook page. The conditions for the part are that you must be male, able to ride a bike and available next week.

"We can provide a wig and a body suit if needed," says Jackson, who asks those wanting to show off their inner Johnson to email elizabeth@alisonjackson.com.
