

Alison Jackson dreams up 'Celebrity B*tchSlap News'

Sneaky shots of Simon Cowell and David Walliams in a bath together, footage of Prince Harry in Jamaica dancing with women in bikinis... At first glance Alison Jackson's new news-style celebrity programme would appear to show major celebrities in career-destroying positions. But they are in fact the latest offerings from satirical photographer Alison Jackson - for her new BBC3 program Celebrity Bitchslap News, presented by Pips Taylor.

The delightful Alison, most famed for her candid snaps of lookalike celebrities in compromising positions, has moved from photography to videos but still manages to make sure her models effortlessly resemble the real life stars - her Duchess of Cambridge mimics Kate's constant hair touching perfectly - and I know, I've seen the real deal in the flesh several times!

The show is hosted by Pips Taylor (who is set to be the next big thing in presenting according to my spies in TV land) as well as up and comer Sean Young. I exclusively revealed the series was going ahead in my column earlier this year and now I can bring you a free episode:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/iplayer/episode/p00v5jpb/Celebrity_Bitchslap_News/

Report by Amy Keegan

July 18, 2012 Comments \(0\) | TrackBack \(0\) | Permalink

Written by Katie.nicholl@mailonsunday.co.uk