

The Election shenanigans you DIDN'T see: Farage pushing a boozed-up Cameron in a shopping trolley, Miliband and Sturgeon enjoying a Highland Reel - but is everything what it seems?

- These pictures show what the hidden election shenanigans could have been like, featuring all the main party leaders
- Famed photographer Alison Jackson provided a glimpse of how they might have relaxed in the run-up to polling day
- The photos include former Labour leader Ed Miliband enjoying Highland Reel with SNP counterpart Nicola Sturgeon
- David Cameron can also be seen sharing a pint with Ukip's Nigel Farage and being pushed about in shopping trolley

By SAM TONKIN FOR MAILONLINE

PUBLISHED: 17:27, 10 May 2015 | UPDATED: 19:38, 10 May 2015

278
View comments

These pictures show what the hidden election shenanigans could have been like - with one capturing a boozed-up David Cameron being wheeled around in a shopping trolley by Nigel Farage.

Famed photographer Alison Jackson has given an entertaining 'behind-the-scenes' glimpse of what the party leaders might have got up to as a way of unwinding in the lead-up to polling day.

The images include former Labour leader Ed Miliband enjoying a Highland Reel with Scottish National Party counterpart Nicola Sturgeon - possibly taking a break from trying to plot David Cameron's downfall - while the Prime Minister shares a pint down the pub with Ukip's Nigel Farage.

Scroll down for video

© Alison Jackson/REX / Shutterstock

Man about town: The Prime Minister cycles around with Nigel Farage. The pair of lookalikes were snapped by photographer Alison Jackson