

Spray tans, porn and pageant queens in the Oval Office - and some very dodgy military regalia! Is this a glimpse of what life could be like inside a Trump White House?

- Renowned celebrity artist Alison Jackson, 46, has set up a series of spoof photos using lookalikes of Trump
- One snap shows him being sprayed by an aide fully nude as he tops up his infamous orange tan
- Another depicts a raunchy scene on the desk of the Oval Office with Miss Mexico and other models
- A Republican candidate lookalike groped bikini-clad women on city streets at book launch

By CHARLIE MOORE FOR MAILONLINE
PUBLISHED: 22:35, 8 November 2016 | UPDATED: 21:35, 11 November 2016

13k shares 122 View comments

Having sex with Miss Mexico, enjoying a naked spray tan and throwing wads of money around the Oval Office - this is Donald Trump's first day in power, according to Alison Jackson.

The renowned celebrity artist, 46, has set up a series of spoof photos using real-life lookalikes of The Donald as he hopes to claim the White House for his own in today's election.

One snap shows him being sprayed by an aide fully nude as he tops up his infamous tan, while another depicts a raunchy scene on the desk of the Oval Office with Miss Mexico as Jackson gives a glimpse of what life could be like inside a Trump White House.

Having sex with Miss Mexico, enjoying a naked spray tan and throwing wads of money around the Oval Office - this is Donald Trump's first day in power, according to Alison Jackson

Jackson depicted racy scenes - including one that shows The Donald playing roulette in the Oval Office with two models

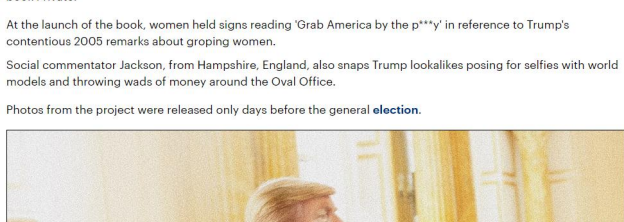

Photos from the project were released only days before the general election and one depicts the Donald seducing a woman at work

The Republican candidate also dons some very dodgy military regalia in Jackson's impression, released in her new book Private.

At the launch of the book, women held signs reading 'Grab America by the py' in reference to Trump's contentious 2005 remarks about groping women.

Social commentator Jackson, from Hampshire, England, also snaps Trump lookalikes posing for selfies with world models and throwing wads of money around the Oval Office.

Photos from the project were released only days before the general election.

The Republican candidate also dons some very dodgy military regalia and appears to grope bikini-clad women on city streets in Jackson's impression

One snap shows him being sprayed by an aide fully nude as he tops up his infamous tan, while another depicts a raunchy scene on the desk of the Oval Office with Miss Mexico

The renowned celebrity artist, 46, has set up a series of spoof photos using real-life lookalikes of The Donald. Pictured: A Donald lookalike at the launch of Jackson's book today

The women are holding signs reading 'Grab America by the py' in reference to Trump's contentious 2005 remarks about groping women at the book launch

One photo shows a Donald lookalike posing at a hot dog stand with a woman as she eats a sausage at the book launch

This morning, billionaire businessman Trump and his wife were met with boos in their home city of Manhattan when they voted.

They were met with even louder shouts as they exited Manhattan's Public School 59, just a few blocks from Trump Tower.

The reception was unsurprising given Manhattan is typically a Democratic stronghold - although a handful of Trump backers were also on hand to cheer on their nominee.

His son Eric Trump also caused controversy later on Tuesday by posting a picture of his ballot on Twitter.

- More images available in Private: Alison Jackson, out now on Amazon for £14.99.

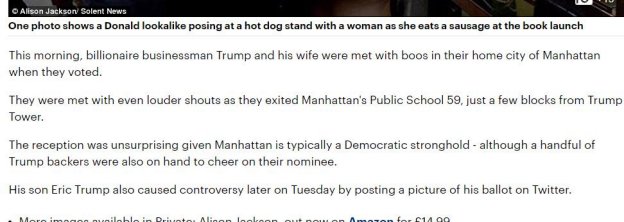

One snap showed the Republican candidate posing for selfies with models in the artist's impression

One of Alison Jackson's photos shows a Donald lookalike reading a playboy magazine in the Oval Office

One snap shows a Donald lookalike entertaining some groupies in the city streets at the book launch

Social commentator Jackson, from Hampshire, England, also snaps Trump throwing wads of money around the Oval Office

The impression shows lookalikes posing for selfies with world models with a 'make America great again' phone case